

1922-1948. Spanish passports extended by Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Simultaneously as those booklet variations (please, see chapter 2), another secondary collection appeared in 1922 and disappeared around 1948: booklets extended in Spanish Consulates and Vice-consulates abroad.

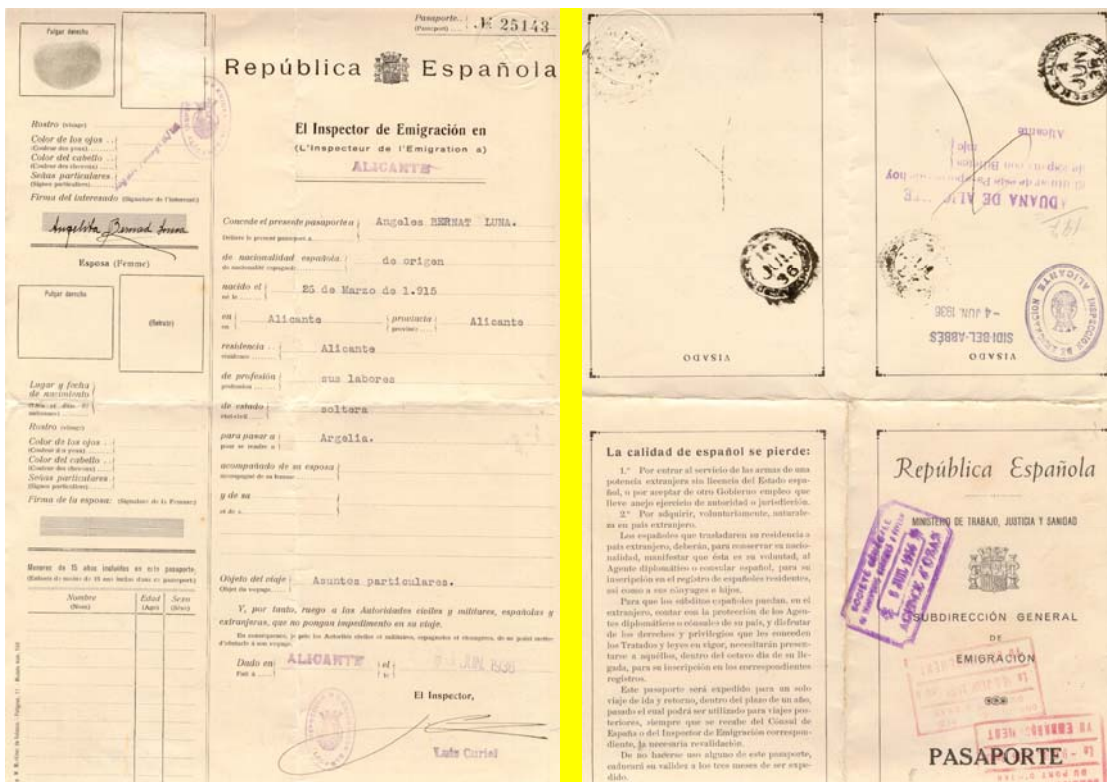

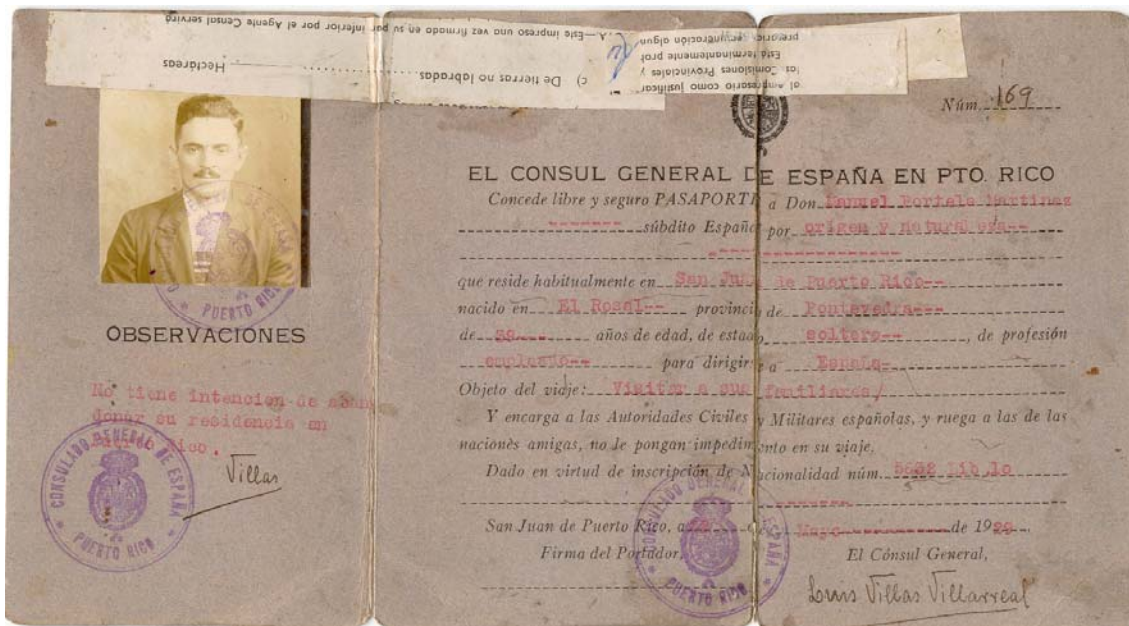

Common Spanish passports are extended in Spain by the Ministry of Internal Affairs (picture 1, left), and abroad (Consulates and Vice-consulates) by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs (picture 1, right). Both were extended according to the same law and minor regulations.

Starting in May 1922, the passport booklet model was spread in Spain various months later. However, passports extended abroad maintained the old model (sheet) for the next few years. Also, Consulates and Vice-consulates extended passports in other formats (folding double page, leaflet) and, finally around 1936 all common Spanish passports were extended in booklet model.

You can find 1929 passports in leaflet format and 1936 passports in folding double page format.

Leaflet passports and folding double page passports aren't taken into consideration here, as we will focus on them in next pages.

In addition to booklet colours and nuances, as those extended in Spanish provinces, Spanish legations provided passports with a different cover for each office. Not only did they include the name of the legation in page 1, they included it also on the cover.

There wasn't a unique model. E.g. As far as I know, in 1922 Guatemala consulate didn't include the name on the cover, on the other hand, in 1948 the consulate in Tunisia kept its name on the cover.

Finally, covers contained only the word "passport", the coat of arms and the name of the country. And the covers' colour was green.

See the frame above that includes a wide Spanish Consulates and Vice-consulates list that extended those pretty passports.

In short.

- A secondary collection appeared in 1922 and disappeared around 1948: booklets extended in Spanish Consulates and Vice-consulates abroad.
- Common Spanish passports are extended in Spain by the Ministry of Internal Affairs, and abroad by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.
- Consulates and Vice-consulates extended passports in other formats (folding double page, leaflet) and, finally around 1936 all common Spanish passports were extended in booklet model.
- Spanish legations provided passports with a different cover for each office. There wasn't a unique model.

Issuing place	year	type	Issuing place	year	type
Agen	1924	booklet	Lisbonne
Alexandria	1956	booklet	London
Amsterdam			Montevideo	1929	extra sheet
Assilah	1939	booklet	Oran	1936	folding sheet
Argel 1	1935	booklet	Pau	1939	booklet
Argel 2	1940	booklet	Pergpinan	1946	booklet
Bayona 1	1940	booklet	Pergpinan	1947	booklet
Bayona 2	1941	booklet	Puerto Rico	1929	leaflet
Berlin			Puerto Rico	1933	booklet
Boston			Rome
Brussels			Quito		booklet
Buenos Aires	1926	extra sheet	Saint Nazaire	1923	sheet
Buenos Aires 1	1936	booklet	Santiago-Chili
Buenos Aires 2	1948	booklet	Santiago-Espailat	1922	leaflet
Düsseldorf	1939	booklet	Sidi-Bel-Abbès	1936	booklet
Guatemala	1922	booklet	Tanger
Gibraltar	1946	booklet	Tetouan	1927	sheet
Geneva	1942	booklet	Tetouan	1930	booklet
La Habana	1933	booklet	Tunisia	1948	booklet
Hendaya	1939	booklet	Paris 1	1927	booklet
Larache	1937	booklet	Paris 2	1940	booklet
La Paz	1947	booklet

© Félix Álvarez 2011.